Article 4

Domestic servitude

(Last updated: 29/02/2024)

Introduction

For Convention purposes, "servitude" means an obligation to provide one's services that is imposed by the use of coercion, and is to be linked with the concept of slavery (Siliadin v. France, 2005, § 124).

Domestic servitude is a specific offence, distinct from trafficking and exploitation, which involves a complex set of dynamics, involving both overt and more subtle forms of coercion, to force compliance (C.N. v. the United Kingdom, 2012, § 80).

State obligations in brief

Article 4 substantive limb:

- The positive obligation to set in place a legislative and administrative framework that prohibits and punishes forced or compulsory labour, servitude and slavery (C.N. and V. v. France, 2012, § 105);
- The positive obligation to take operational measures to protect persons in a situation of slavery, servitude and forced or compulsory labour (C.N. v. the United Kingdom, 2012, § 67).

Article 4 procedural limb:

- The duty to investigate where there is a credible suspicion that an individual's rights under Article 4 have been violated (C.N. v. the United Kingdom, 2012, § 69).

Noteworthy examples

- Siliadin v. France, 2005, the Court extended the application of positive obligations to Article 4 (§§ 77-89);
- C.N. and V. v. France, 2012, the Court clarified the meaning of labour and servitude when it comes to domestic help (§§ 73-79).

Recap of general principles

- For a recapitulation of general principles, see C.N. v. the United Kingdom, 2012, §§ 65-69.
